

312 BEGINNERS ARE ENROLLED ON FIRST DAY OF SCHOOL HERE

Most of Them Are in The Harriman School Building

ADOPT A CALENDAR Those Taking Post Graduate Courses Must Give Service To District

Three hundred and twelve beginners were enrolled in the public schools here yesterday and more are expected to be registered today.

Those enrolling on the first day were assigned to the various buildings:

Bath street, 20; Beaver street, 13; Washington street, 15; Jefferson avenue, 23; Wood street, 27; high school building, 64.

The report of superintendent Howard E. James to the school board last night also suggested the school calendar for the term 1933-1934. The schools opened yesterday and will close June 22, 1934. One holiday will be given during the month of October to afford the teachers an opportunity to visit other schools.

The Thanksgiving holidays will extend from 2.30 p. m., November 29th, to nine a. m., December 4th. The Christmas holidays will extend from 2.30 p. m., December 22nd until nine a. m., January 2nd.

The schools will also be closed a half day February 22nd in observance of Washington's birthday. March 15th and 16th will be given so that teachers may attend the Schoolmen's Week at the University of Pennsylvania.

The Easter vacation will be from 2.30 p. m., March 29th, to April 3rd, and the schools will be closed May 30th, in observance of Memorial Day.

The board last night also ruled that those returning to school for post-graduate work must give to the school district as many hours of service as they receive hours of instruction.

Miss Dorothy Hardy, recently elected as commercial teacher, advised the board she was unable to secure her release from her present position. Miss Grace L. King, Philadelphia, was chosen to fill the vacancy. The salary was fixed at $1300.

The board voted the Property Committee full power to order maintenance work done in the various school buildings. Stanford K. Runyan, newly elected member of the Board, is chairman of this committee, having associated with him Emil Metzger and George Molden.

Treasurer, Emil Metzger, submitted his monthly report. Members of the Board present were Green, Taylor, Gillies, Fabian, Runyan, Molden and Metzger.

An acute food shortage developed in the towns stricken by the streams and all survivors were begging assistance. Supplies of bread and milk were being rushed here from Wallace county.

Property damage throughout the storm area, estimated to be 50 miles square, was appalling. Buildings were battered to pieces; streets were flooded to a depth of six feet. The citrus fruit crop of the fertile valley was virtually destroyed, the loss being estimated at $3,000,000.

160 ARE LICENSED TO WED IN COUNTY DURING AUGUST

Two Records Were Broken
During the Past Month

23 MORE THAN JULY Set Record for the Month of August, Records Show

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 6.—Two records were broken during August by applicants for marriage licenses here. The total number of licenses granted was 160, 23 more than for the same month in 1932. This year's total for August is also a record for that month.

The number of candidates from Bucks County were larger than usual. It is estimated that Philadelphia and Trenton contributed about seventy per cent of the applicants. Sixty-two men and women came from Trenton, and 49 candidates gave Philadelphia or its suburbs as their address.

Occupations given by the women included that of inspectors, cigarmakers, nurses, telephone operators, chambermaids and housework. Five school teachers and one music teacher were applicants.

Professions, according to male registrations, were those of a physician, an artist and a newspaperman and author. One Philadelphia, who was born in Germany, gave his occupation as a hair-dresser. A well known writer took as his choice a designer, and an editor, who was divorced, won as his mate, an advertising woman. The latter had also been previously married.

A 57-year-old benedict wooed a 24-year-old bride.

Occupations for the male applicants ranged from trolley operators, plumbers, window decorators, doormen and firemen to farming. A proof reader and book binder, both from Philadelphia, complete the list.

Bucks county boroughs and their number follow: Bristol, 4 men, 5 women. Doylestown, 3 men and 2 women. Langhorne, 1 woman. Quakertown, 2 men and 3 women. Sellersville, 3 men and 2 women. Yardley contributed a single man and woman. Perkasie and New Hope each contributed three women.

Age limit of the applicants were: Men: Under 21 years, 2; 21 to 25 years, 62; 25 to 30 years, 22; 30 to 40 years, 17; 40 to 50 years, 5; 50 to 60 years, 3; more than sixty years, 2. Women: Under 21 years, 15; 21 to 25 years, 87; 25 to 30 years, 16; 30 to 40 years, 7; 40 to 50 years, 2.

SEPT. 9TH LAST DAY FOR VOTERS NOT ENROLLED

Must Appear at the Office of County Commissioners

SO AS TO BE REGISTERED

Voters of Bucks County having the qualifications to vote as to residence and payment of taxes, but who are not registered or enrolled with any political party, still have the opportunity to become registered and enrolled with the party of their choice, by appearing at the County Commissioners' office, Doylestown, for that purpose, at any time 10 days before the Primary Election.

Saturday, September 9 next, is the last day for persons who are not enrolled, to be registered with a political party at the County Commissioners' office.

Persons who are already enrolled can not change their party affiliation between now and the day of the Primary. This must have been done on or before the 62nd day before the Primary.

However, since there are reports from many sections of the county that Republican voters have been registered, without their knowledge or consent, as Democrats, such persons upon proof submitted to the County Commissioners that their enrollment has been changed without their consent, will be permitted to have their party affiliation corrected.

An elector voting on age whose name does not appear on the registry of voters and who has all the qualifications to vote, except as to the payment of taxes, may declare his party preference on the day of the Primary and prove his right to vote in the same manner as he would be called upon to do at a general election.

BARN BURNER GETS 10 TO 20 YEARS IN EASTERN "PEN"

John F. Pidcock, 18, Newtown, Admits Firing
Two Structures

WANTED EXCITEMENT

"Things Were Too Slow,"
Prisoner Told Fire Marshal
Stackhouse

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 6.—John F. Pidcock, 18-year-old Newtown farm hand, charged with arson, was sentenced to pay a fine of $1, costs of prosecution and undergo imprisonment of not less than 5 nor more than 13 years in Eastern State Penitentiary by Judge Calvin S. Boyer.

On another charge, a similar sentence was imposed, to begin at the expiration of the first.

Pidcock told the Court he had no ill feelings against either Bond or Buckman, whose places he burned.

Pidcock spent two years in a sanatorium in order to regain his health.

Mr. Pidcock, a George School fireman, and father of the defendant, testified that John's mother was dead.

Fire Marshal William L. Stackhouse testified the defendant was suspected of a garage fire in November, 1931.

"Pidcock admitted," said the fire marshal, "he had set the Bond garage on fire."

"I went to bed and was not able to sleep. I wanted some excitement, things were too slow," Stackhouse testified the defendant told him.

Fire Marshal Stackhouse said Pidcock stayed out late at night and was frequently seen walking along the roads at 2.30 o'clock in the morning.

"Your case is very peculiar, including the story of your health and bringing up. We suspect you have not been entirely truthful or frank."

"There is only one thing the Court can consider in sentencing you or others brought before the Court and that is protection of the public."

"The fact that you can give no reason indicates you are a dangerous boy," said Judge Calvin S. Boyer.

Harrisburg, Sept. 6.—Faced by a shaky financial set-up the task of controlling hard liquor, when and if it returns, and numerous other grave problems, Pennsylvania today prepared for another gathering of the general assembly in November—the third extraordinary session of the current Pinchot administration. Persons close to the administration today admitted the inevitable session is to be called shortly after the Fall election and that approximately 12 "important subjects" will be included in the proclamation.

With 25 states already flying "wet" banners, repeal of the 18th amendment before Christmas is regarded as a virtual certainty and Pennsylvania must prepare accordingly.

Opinion differs as to what effect repeal will have on existing state laws. Because of this the Governor will demand regulation and taxation legislation before repeal actually is achieved.

Continuation of relief work in this state hinges on the approval of a $25,000,000 bond issue by the voters in November.

CROYDON CADETS SECURE SECOND NATIONAL PRIZE

Vie for Honors With Other
Bugle Corps in Police and Firemen Parade

AT WASHINGTON, D. C.

CROYDON, Sept. 6.—Forty cadets associated with Joseph A. Schumacher Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, returned from Washington, D. C., yesterday, proudly bearing a loving cup and $50, which represented second prize for junior cadet drum and bugle corps vying for honors in the annual national parade of police and firemen at the capital city.

The cadets who stood up against a wide competitive field, easily gained second place, and admiring glances were caused by their natty uniforms which consisted of red jackets, blue trousers, and blue caps.

Accompanying the group to Washington, and also taking part in the parade were 15 members of the Croydon Rescue Squad which is affiliated with the Croydon Fire Company; and three women from the Rescue Squad Auxiliary. The Rescue Squad members were garbed in white with trench helmets of white; while the women were gown as nurses. This is the first time the groups have participated in the said annual parade in the District of Columbia, as the cadets have been organized but six months, and the Rescue Squad but a few months.

The winning aggregation from Croydon has been trained by William Keene and Frederick DeVoe.

The marshal of the local groups in the parade route was Robert Porter; with Thomas McKensy at lieutenant marshal.

The party left here Sunday, arriving home yesterday morning. The parade occurred Labor Day.

Farmers Divided Over Calling of Milk Strike

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6.—(INS)—Farmers opposed to the new Philadelphia milk shed marketing agreement were divided today over the advisability of calling a strike to obtain their demands.

The break occurred when Lewis Bentley, president of the United Farmers' Protective Association, walked out of a meeting called by the executive committee of the newly-formed Milk Code Protest Committee.

In a statement Bentley attacked the organization as an "eleventh hour" group formed to divide the farmers' while the committee asserted it would not consider a milk strike until all other means of obtaining modifications of the new pact had been exhausted.

The committee asked the Interstate Milk Producers' Association to join it in a request to the Agricultural Adjustment Administration for an investigation of the profits of large dairy companies.

Charles F. Preston, newly appointed administrator for the Philadelphia milk shed, in a statement admitted the farmers' demands were based on legitimate claims.

MRS. BLANKENBURG PAYS TRIBUTE TO MRS. COOPER

Says Chairman of Bucks Republican Women Most Splendid Leader

80 MEET, QUAKERTOWN

QUAKERTOWN, Sept. 6.—With Gordon Luckenbill, Mrs. Lucertia Blankenburg, Mrs. Charles F. Etter on the program, 80 members and friends of the Bucks County Council of Republican Women had a thoroughly enjoyable meeting at the headquarters of the Quakertown Women's Club, yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. John W. Cooper, chairman of the County Council, presided, and to her great tribute was paid by Mrs. Blankenburg, well-known widow of a Philadelphia mayor. Mrs. Blankenburg told of her pride in having such a capable woman as Mrs. Cooper leading Bucks County Republican women, and added: "Mrs. Cooper is one of the most splendid leaders I have known, and I have known many." Mrs. Blankenburg's impromptu talk was much enjoyed, and she complimented the Bucks Countians on the progress marked.

Mr. Luckenbill, one of the two scheduled speakers of the afternoon, gave a talk on local politics, eulogizing the type of officers as represented by the Bucks County row officers and judges. Mr. Luckenbill also said to the assemblage "We can do no better than to re-elect Arthur M. Eastburn as district attorney."

Mrs. Charles F. Etter, Harrisburg, vice-chairman of the Republican State Committee, and the only woman recorder of deeds in the state, holding that office in Dauphin County, also addressed the women. Mrs. Etter spoke on practical politics. Her entire corps of workers is composed of women.

Vocal solos were given by Mrs. Horace Boorse, and attractive dances by Miss Fein. Both of these women are Quakertown residents. Records of the meeting were in charge of Mrs. J. Palmer, Langhorne, secretary.

Blame Man Killed In Auto Accident for Death

A coroner's jury at Doylestown yesterday held that George T. Lotzessell, 25, Ottsville aviator, connected with the Pine Tree Flying Field, came to his death on August 11th, due to his reckless operation of the automobile in which he was riding.

Lotzessell was killed while driving north on the Lackawanna Trail when his car and one operated by Ruth G. Larany, 32, Moorehead, Minn., crashed.

It was brought out at the inquest yesterday held in the office of W. Carlile Hobensack, that Miss Larany was driving along back of a truck traveling in the direction of Doylestown. She "nosed" her car out to pass the truck when the car operated by Lotzessell approached at a terrific speed. The cars crashed and Lotzessell was tossed 50 feet into the air.

TROOPERS KILL RIOTERS

Beacon, N. Y., Sept. 6.—Falling to subdue four rebellious inmates with tear gas after they barricaded themselves in an isolated room, state troopers today shot and killed one of the rioters and seriously wounded another as the climax to a four-hour battle following a futile attempt by the quartette to flee the Mattewan State Hospital for the criminal insane here.

The dead man was Raymond Fisher, of Buffalo.

Shelly Marshall, New York City, was wounded in both legs and said to be in a serious condition.

The shooting followed a battle in which the four rebellious persons fought police and deputy sheriffs with chairs and broken furniture after withstanding a barrage of tear gas bombs. Fisher and Marshall together with James Ellis, Brooklyn and Reinhardt Bolz, New York City, made a bid for freedom early this morning when they attacked Thomas Diamond and Wellington Wolf, guards at the hospital as the latter made their final inspection rounds of the ward. Wellington and Diamond were severely beaten but their cries brought other guards to their aid. The four prisoners fled to an isolated room and barricaded themselves by smashing furniture and windows, shouting defiance and refusing to come out.

VERMONT FOR REPEAL

Montpelier, Vermont, Sept. 6.—The rolling moss of national wet sentiment swept the prohibition moss of three quarters of a century from the Green Mountains and today Vermont stood the 25th consecutive state demanding repeal of the 18th amendment. Vermont, considered by many as one of the most arid states in the country, rolled up a two to one majority for repeal, electing 12 wets and 2 dry delegates to the state constitutional convention to be held here September 15th. Voting was extremely light. Final figures from the 248 cities and towns in the state showed: for repeal 41,279, against repeal, 20,572.

HIBERNIANS EVEN MATTERS IN SERIES

Defeat Hulmeville by The Score of 5 to 0 in Fourth Game

NOW TWO GAMES EACH

Finding the offerings of "Howie" Black for 12 hits, the Hibernians evened matters in the Lower Bucks County League championship series on St. Ann's field last night when Danny Hines blanked the Hulmeville club, 5-0.

The series now stands at two victories each and the deciding match to determine the winners will be played at Hulmeville on Friday night.

Hines was supreme on the hill. He allowed three hits and two of these were of the scratch variety. Conly's drive in the second went for a double after Roe had his hands on the pill, and then dropped it. In the fifth, Harrison beat out a hit to short. Bilger had the other safety, a single in the first.

Hines' change of pace had the Hulmevilleites completely baffled. The best visitors could do was to pop up or hit weak grounders which the infield of the winners covered with ease. The Hibs' twirler did not issue a pass and connected for two bingles himself. Hines has had little trouble in conquering the second half champs. In the final game of the second half he blanked the Hulmeville club. Last Friday night he allowed a run which was unearned and then last night's masterful performance. In the last twenty-three innings, Hulmeville has not scored an earned run and only have been credited with nine hits against the Hibernian peakman.

In beating the invaders the Bristol club conquered their old nemesis.

A little nine-year-old girl met death almost instantly last night as she fell beneath the wheels of a bus on Otter street, almost directly in front of her home, when she ran into the street, after retrieving a ball which had bounced across the roadway. Those who witnessed the accident told police the child was struck by the fender of the bus and one of the wheels ran over her body.

The child, Grace Elizabeth West, 230 Otter street, was carried first into her home and then later to the Harriman Hospital, where it was found she had a fractured skull, fractured ribs and other internal injuries. James Flach and others took the child to the hospital.

Grace, it is stated, was playing ball with Helen Brasica, a neighbor. Both children along with others were playing on the sidewalk on the east side of the street. The ball they had bounced into the roadway and Grace went after it. In returning from the opposite side of the street, she failed to notice the approach of a Delaware River Coach Company bus. The right front fender struck the child and hurled her to the ground, a wheel, it is said, passing over her body. The bus was driven by Eugene J. Beck, Croydon.

The limp form of the girl was carried to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Guy West, just a few doors away.

In addition to the mother and father, two brothers and a sister survive.

Grace, last year, attended the Beaver street school, being taught by Miss Mary Wilkinson. This year she had been assigned to the Bath street building. She was a member of the Zion Lutheran Sunday School where she attended.

The accident was investigated by both Superintendent of Public Safety James L. McGee and Chief of Police Linford J. Jones. The driver of the bus was taken into custody and held in $1,000 bail by Justice of Peace James Guy, to await the action of the coroner.

The accident was the first in which a person was injured since the inauguration of a Safety Campaign by Burgess Clifford L. Anderson on September 1st. Burgess Anderson on Friday called upon all residents of Bristol to co-operate in the national safety drive to make September free of accidents.

GLORIOUS SEASON

Nature is speaking sweetly in these dying days of summer. Her message is one of the serious and beautiful things of life. To feel it, go out among the trees and hills, near some lagging river or brook and witness the passing of a season.

The beauty of fall is the red-grey glow of reminiscence. Trees that we remember basking into brilliant green in spring now have faded. But how prettily faded! Like a mother, in reverent age, donning the silver mantle of white hair! A fading tree speaks mutely of how splendid a thing age can be. It is a great art to fade beautifully.

The hills that had been clothed with the vigor of bright greens have taken a quieter, more peaceful outlook now. It is as though age, in a pretty shawl, sat rocking peacefully, remembering and waiting.

Down in the valley all is quiet and lovely. The boisterous brook of the spring is singing a different song now, a melody of contentment. Along the banks the trees nod gravely, the trees that had known and gloried in the lashing passion of summer storms.

A miracle of miracles is working in the outdoors now. To witness it is to know a little more about life—and peace.

POLICE CO-OPERATION NEEDED

Since the beginning of the century there has been a tendency to extend the Federal police powers and to romanticize the Federal police service much as the world has done with the Canadian Mounted and with England's Scotland Yard. This can be carried too far, especially at a time when kidnapping and racketeering have worked the public into an hysteria.

Hearings of the Senate racketeering committee have revealed a positive movement toward the extension of the police power of the Federal Government to all felonies and toward a shifting of public dependency from the local police to the bureau of investigation at Washington.

Warden Lawes, of Sing Sing, shows his attitude toward the current trends in his testimony that the re-establishing of the odds in favor of the law as against the criminal and his crime does not require martial law. His confidence is in the mace of the city policeman.

It is justly complained that the community law enforcement agencies, especially in the larger cities, are the toys of powerful politicians, many of whom hold their power by the arm of the criminal and racketeer. But the Federal police service is not entirely free from subversive influences. Presidents and attorney generals have found it only too easy to take department of justice detectives off the trail of criminals and put them on the trail of political enemies.

America's crime problem does not justify martial law, but it does demand closer co-operation between all the forces of law enforcement.

CHAPTER ONE

Tommy Randolph had always been different.

But his mother always thought he was grand.

Even from the very first he had been different. Uncle Louie had come to see him right after he was born and had nodded his head and said: "That kid has got a future; we've got to give him a good name."

Mom had thought she would like to call him Harry after her father because Pete had been named after Pop's father; but Pop and Uncle Louie didn't even look at her while they were arguing. They were both great Democrats and Uncle Louie would have been postmaster if Bryan had ever been elected; so Mom thought it was settled when Pop, who had marched in all the parades carrying colored umbrellas and who loved to sit and argue politics, pounded on the table with his fist and said:

"We'll call him William Jennings Bryan Randolph."

Mom was worried—one of those quick flashes which come over a person. It was an awful long name, although it sounded grand; but the other kids would call him Bill and boys called Bill were always bad and hard to control.

"The full name," Pop was insisting in his heavy voice. Pop had a big enough voice any time but now it was louder because he was celebrating the new arrival. Mom tried to catch Uncle Louie's eye but he was too busy thinking. Then he shook his head and said to Pop:

"No—we've got to go back further than that. Bryan ain't never been elected and I doubt if the trusts will ever let him in. We've got to go clear back to the founder of Democracy, to a president of the United States and the framer of the Constitution, Thomas Jefferson himself."

It sounded grand the way Uncle Louie said it, like he was making a speech, and Pop was satisfied to give up Bryan. Poor Bryan, Mom thought, somebody was always putting his name up and then he was never elected; and she was glad her son wasn't going to be named after anybody like that but after somebody who really amounted to something—a president of the United States. A secret pride and ambition was born within her at the thought and she always went back to that moment when Tommy did something great.

After all, Lincoln was born in a worse place and this was a free country and Mom did not think the capitalists were as bad as Pop said when he got to arguing, especially because when Pop got started he never knew where to stop and sometimes Mom thought he liked to hear the sound of his own voice. Pop, she sometimes thought, oughtn't to be an actor instead of a glassworker, but that's the way things went. His pap was a presser so Pop had gone to learn his trade early.

But Tommy was different.

There was the first time Mom had ever taken him out in his new buggy, all dressed up with a dress she had spent half the night on tucking and sewing insertion—a dress for Tommy, it was, because Mom never bothered much about style for herself. People all along stopped to pat him and say how bright he was for one so young and who he looked like and all that; but never once did Tommy pay any attention to any of them. It was like he knew what they were saying and took it for granted, the cute little cogder.

"He's a brave young 'un," Ole Liz cackled. "... I put a wish on him ... it's a good wish."

Then up the street had come Ole Liz, the scraggly old colored woman some people thought was a witch. Mom remembered to this day how she had trembled because the old thing scared children just to look at her and she had even given one of her own daughters consumption by putting a wish on her. Mom was all beside herself. She was afraid Tommy might go into spasms if he saw the old hag but she couldn't go on the other side of the street because they said Mrs. Davis did that once and Ole Liz put a wish on her and that was why her baby wasn't bright. So Mom did all she could do which was to keep on going as though nothing was happening and keep on praying to God that the devil couldn't hurt her son. If this old witch did anything to her Tommy, Mom thought, she would kill her; the town would be well rid of her anything with all the things she did, even helping to get rid of babies; but the truth was, Mom was afraid of Ole Liz herself.

She was stopping them; her teeth, or what was left of them, were like tobacco sticks because she rubbed snuff and it was dripping down her mouth; and her face was like a dried up cat's and her eyes like something Mom couldn't think of.

She put her head down to the buggy and pointed her long claws at the baby. Mom just stood there stiff, sure that the old hardscrabble was putting the evil eye on her son.

Her blood ran cold and she waited for Tommy to start crying; when he didn't she thought, no wonder, he's too scared to cry and that starts spasms, she brought herself to look.

Tommy was laughing!

Mom couldn't believe her eyes. Tommy was noticing the old thing.

He even liked her. Mom didn't know what to make of it except—the thought almost killed her—that the witch was putting a spell on Tommy so that he would like her instead of his own mother. Mom was just going to tell her to get away when the old woman turned and started to cackle; her face was more like a human's and her eyes didn't look like the devil's any more.

"He's a brave young 'un," Ole Liz cackled and shook her head. "I put a wish on him."

"No," Mom called, terrified, "no—"

But the old woman put her hand on Mom and said: "Don't you worry, honey, it's a good wish. He's the fust white baby ever smile to Granny."

And the way she looked then Mom could never fear her after that. If anybody had ever told Mom she could have Ole Liz touch her and live through it Mom wouldn't have believed them; but there she was, pushing Tommy down the street as though nothing had happened. Well, it was a funny world; some people did say the old thing had a good heart if you didn't cross her.

But Mom didn't say anything to anybody about the wish. Pop would be after her for it and be talking about killing the old woman but it would just be talk; and the neighbor ladies would never believe it was a good wish but would swear it was a bad wish.

It wasn't good for children people said Ole Liz had put a wish on; people would watch them all their lives and always expect something to happen to them. There was Dave Ayers, killed on the railroad, twenty-two years to the day after the old witch had put a wish on him because his mother had called her what she was.

UPTURNED BRIMS ON FALL HATS CREATE YOUTHFUL STYLE

Fox, Mink and Skunk Are Popular Fur Trim For Fall Fashions

By Alice Langelier (I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

PARIS—(INS)—The brimmed hat turned up again. For the first time in many seasons we are going to see a crown which retains height combined with a brim resulting in a very youthful little bonnet.

These brims vary in width up to two inches, dipping over the right eye and are turned up against the crown at the back. The return of the eyelid hat should make the women happy, for they know that it is always very flattering. The brim line is right and the hat young looking and becoming this fall. What more could any woman ask for?

Blocks and points, the high-lights of present problems in the economic world, are being translated into terms of millinery these days. Marie Alphonse's "six-point beret" is being very much discussed in the city of fashions. Other modistes take their points a bit less seriously, using only three or four as the case may be, in simulated tricorn crowns and four-square toques.

Velvet berets that slope down in front and brim out slightly over the forehead, as well as the new turban cap-shapes which reveal the elegant afternoon tendency in velvet suggests informal restaurant dinners. Height is not so much achieved by the back uplift, but by topping the crown with very much brim.

Short brims are also present on little hats that sport old-fashioned tufts of ostrich feathers. One model exploiting the new crown which is high and actually squared through top seamings, comes in navy-blue hat velvet and has a tuft of the feathers in vivid red, green and blue poised near the ridge of the crown on one side. On another, a high-crowned shape, the high cuff is single and folds over the forehead from a tuck-in round the crown. It is made of the new ostrich feather-felt which is light and the very latest removal from angora, with ostrich woven through the felt instead of fur.

SPORTS

TENNIS ACES STAGE BRILLIANT GAMES

One of the most spectacular tennis battles ever waged on the Trenton municipal courts took place last evening, when Herbert Lawrence and Nelson Green, Bristol's two tennis aces, came in competition with the Trenton doubles champions, Kuser and Craig, in the semi-finals of the Trenton tournament.

Kuser and Craig took the first set 6-4 and with the score at 3-1 in their favor in the second set, the Bristol boys staged a spectacular rally, winning five straight games and the set, by the score 6-3.

The final set was a gruelling contest in which the Bristol stars shone with a new luster. Lawrence and Green took the lead and with the score at 3-1 in their favor, the Trenton aces staged a spurt which brought the score to 4-3, with the Trentonians leading. Green won his service and tied the score. The Trenton champions held their service also and the score stood 5-4. Lawrence won his service and then the local boys broke Craig's service, placing them in the lead, 6-5. A long dence followed, during which the Bristol stars had set point several times. The game was finally won by Trenton making the score 6-6. During the next four games, each contestant won his own service, and with the score 8-8, the game was called on account of darkness.

The contest will be decided this afternoon when the last set will be played over again. The importance of this match can be determined only when it is known that Kuser has been the singles champion on the Trenton municipal courts for the past nine years, and Kuser and Craig have held the doubles championship for several years past.

Both Kuser and Craig have been playing in tournaments for a number of years and in consequence are seasoned and experienced players, while Lawrence and Green are two Bristol boys who practically grew up on the local Elks' courts. Up to the last two years, these boys have had very little tournament experience, and naturally have lacked that confidence and steadiness, which can be acquired only with experience. Lawrence is 24 years old and Green 20. Lawrence recently defeated Norman Swayne of George School, who for several years has been the outstanding tennis star in Bucks County. Last year, Green, who is a student at Pennsylvania State College, won the college tennis championship.

SIX LETTER MEN REPORT FOR INITIAL PRACTICE

By Oscar Corn
(B. H. S. Press Representative)

Now that old "Father Pigskin" has been again elevated to his ermine bedecked throne, his football vassals of the Bristol High gridiron have fallen right into step.

Yesterday, the Cardinal and Gray mentor, Coach Dougherty, called together the initial practice of the Bristol High football candidates. Only thirty eager and spirited men reported, but many more are expected. Among these thirty candidates, six letter men are to be found in Rue, Orazi, Niendorf, Smith, Oppman and Schiffer. There were fourteen new men, and nine hold-overs from last year that did not receive letters.

The squad as a whole is none too promising, yet if they work hard they will give a much more hopeful appearance.

The practice session consisted mainly of exercises, which helps the circulation of the blood, builds up new tissues, and therefore prevents injuries. Mr. Dougherty had the squad also practice blocking fundamentals, kicking and running back kicks, and wind sprints which helps the footballers improve their wind. The practice was concluded with a scull talk, during which time Mr. Dougherty demonstrates plays.

Managers Corn and Berry have made up a very complete schedule. There are a total of eleven games, seven of which are to be played at home. On this schedule there are six new teams: Upper Moreland, LaSalle, Hatboro, Pemberton, Burlington and Bordentown High.

The complete schedule:
Sept. 22—Upper Moreland, away.
Sept. 30—LaSalle, home.
Oct. 6—Doylestown, home.
Oct. 14—Hatboro, home.
Oct. 21—Langhorne, away.
Oct. 28—Alummi, home.
Nov. 4—Fallsington, away.

Nov. 10—Pemberton, home.
Nov. 18—Burlington, home.
Nov. 24—Bordentown, home.
Nov. 30—Morrisville, away.

Following the Harrisburg meetings, a similar conference will be held by representatives of 11 states at Salt Lake City this fall.

SCRANTON—(INS)—A 1½ pound mushroom, one of the largest ever found in this district, was recently discovered growing along the banks of a creek here by Philip H. Piper.

HARRISBURG—(INS)—An establishment selling beer is not a fit place for a voting booth, Dauphin County Commissioners ruled when they transferred a polling place from a cafe to a public school building.

HARRISBURG—(INS)—The span of life of Harrisburgers of today is longer than that of their forebears, the 1932 report of the city health bureau shows.

According to the report, the highest mortality rates are up in the sixties, seventies and eighties, whereas years ago the rates were highest in infancy and childhood.

Deaths reported among residents in the city last year totaled 1,191. Of these, 123 were over the age of 80 years, 809 were over 70, and 246 were over 60. Deaths of persons under one year were 23, or 7.8 per cent of the total. Those between 30 and 60 years numbered 391 or 32.8 per cent.

WILKES-BARRE—(INS)—The new Bucknell University junior college will open its first year's classes here September 14. Prof. John H. Eisenhauer, the director, has announced. Enrollment of students has exceeded expectations.

POTTSVILLE—(INS)—Its value placed at a vast fortune, a coal vein, one of the biggest in the anthracite region, has been discovered by the Sherman Coal Company. It contains a bed 45 feet wide, extending a great length.

MEXICAN INITIALS

DENVER—(INS)—Senor Luis Lupian G., consul general for entire North America, recently paid Denver a visit in the interests of Colorado's large Mexican population. Placing the initial at the end of his name, he explained, was the modern Mexican way, which he asserted avoided confusion sometimes caused by placing the initial in the middle of the name.

Hibernians Even Matters in Series

Black. Black was hit harder last night than all season. No fewer than twelve hits sang out from the Hibs' batsmen. The Bristolians started from the first inning and was still hitting them in the seventh. Black's speed ball lost its zip and his usual quota of strike-outs was reduced to four. The fielding of the Hulmeville club was ragged, five errors being charged. Two of these came in the last Hibernians turn with the stick when three runs put the game on ice for the winners.

The winners played good ball in the field. Thompson and Dougherty coming through with stops that drew applause from the fans. Only one error was charged to the winners in their total of thirty-six chances.

The Corson street boys opened on Black in their first turn with the stick but failed to score, a double-play wiping them out. Foster, Hines and Dougherty singled in succession but Dugan fanned and Roe tapped into a twin-killing, Black to Hemp to Leigh. In Hulmeville's turn, Bilger singled with two outs, but was caught off first. Hines to Foster.

The Hibs counted their first tally in the second. Lyczak singled and was sacrificed by McGinley. Sullivan drove in Lyczak with a hit. Thompson hit into a double-play, Black to Rockhill to Leigh. Comly doubled in the Hulmeville part but was stranded.

In the fourth, the Bristol club scored again. Roe singled and was sacrificed to second by Lyczak. McGinley fanned but Sullivan again came through with a hit, scoring Roe. Thompson fled out.

The final three runs came in the seventh. Sullivan connected with his third straight hit, a single to right. Thompson singled over second and when Watson allowed the ball to roll through his legs, Sullivan counted. Foster singled to left. Comly allowed Haefner's throw to get by him and Thompson scored. Hines scored Foster with a single to left. Dougherty and Dugan were easy outs, Harrison made a fine catch of Dugan's liner.

"Ed" Sullivan led the attack on Black with three hits. He drove in the first two runs and was the organizer of the three run rally in the last session.

A crowd of 1500 watched the fray and were pleased with the playing of both clubs.

"Kindly" Machado in Montreal

There is nothing here to warrant the title "Beast of Havana," which Cubans hung on their deposed President Gerardo Machado, who is shown arriving at Montreal on the liner Lady Rodney, from Nassau, Bahamas, with two boys with whom he made friends on board ship. Canadian authorities took extraordinary precautions for the safety of the ousted dictator.

GOOD NEIGHBOR-IDEAL OF N. R. A.

THE BRISTOL HOME TOWN LEAGUE,
a modern day, home community idea.

President Roosevelt speaking publicly on the recovery drive, places emphasis on the "local community" idea, under which "No individual has a right to do things that hurt his neighbor."

The HOME TOWN LEAGUE stores in this community have pledged to give preference to those products, manufactured by those, who directly or indirectly benefit this community.

When you go into a store you can tell at a glance, whether the things you buy are made in this locality. If you do not know, ask your store-keeper what he recommends, he keeps in close touch with the manufacturers and is in a position to know what they do for the people of this community, whether or not they are good neighbors.

Look for the red and blue HOME TOWN LEAGUE emblems on store windows.
